Tofuture's mission is to improve its customer's business performance through sustainability management.

Tofuture has been working with the leading corporations from 1997 and its sustainability management solutions are currently in use in global multinational companies in more than 50 countries.

Sustainability in the Supply Chain

Tofuture recently launched a new solution for managing supply chain's sustainability issues. The SCREM (Supply Chain Risk Evaluation and Management) solution is developed together with one of the leading retail corporations in the world and is based on the BCSI and SA8000 standards. SCREM helps in managing sustainability issues of a complex supply chain through providing easy to use www-based functions for

- Supplier risk management and monitoring
- Supplier environmental and social performance measurements and
- Supplier audit and questionnaire management and evaluations

With SCREM system it is easy and efficient to supervise the performance and possible risks of suppliers. The corporate buyers can in real time follow the risk level of different suppliers and see the changes in risk profiles through efficient alarm functions. Internal or external auditors can update their experiences in real time to other users of the system. The Sumo system also collects and manages all supplier data, documents and audit results in one single database for easy management and analysis. All changes in the system leaves a full audit trail and thus increases the reliability of the data. Sumo provides several reports for both internal and external use and has been proven to be very efficient tool in managing complex and challenging supply chains.
